PCN Presents Gettysburg Battlewalks

Buy All 8 DVDs And SAVE 15% - Just $135.66 Item: CPG5

Union 1st Corps on Seminary Ridge

The Battle of Gettysburg was about eight hours old. After fighting on McPherson's Ridge, Northern soldiers fell back here and prepared for their last stand. National Park Service Ranger Scott Hartwig explains how an account of the violence praised by veterans for its accuracy was written by a man who had lied about being there.

DVD. Viewing time: 2 hours and 17 minutes.

ITEM: CPG1 $19.95

Brig. Gen. Doles' Brigade

By intercepting a stage coach before it left a Georgian town, George Doles' father stopped his runaway 16-year old son from joining the Mexican army. Young Doles stayed a book keeper but never lost interest in the military. National Park Service Ranger Matt Atkinson explains how Doles and his fellow Georgians figured into the first day of battle.

DVD. Viewing time: 1 hour and 50 minutes.

Maj. Gen. Hancock's Leadership

Contemplating his strategy, Gen. George Meade knew his next move would stir up controversy. He promoted "Hancock the Superb" to take charge of all Union forces on the field. National Park Service Ranger Eric Campbell explains how this promotion – an allowable leap-frogging over superiors – would give Hancock a chance to prove his mettle once again, during possibly the worst hour of his life.

DVD. Viewing time: 1 hour and 45 minutes.

ITEM: CPG3 $19.95

Brinkerhoff's Ridge

During the late afternoon of the second day of the battle, Brig. Gen. David Gregg ordered the 10th New York Cavalry to dismount and advance on the 2nd Virginia Infantry of the famous Stonewall Brigade. National Park Service Ranger Troy Harman puts this fight into context by explaining why Brinkerhoff's Ridge was symptomatic of a greater problem.

DVD. Viewing time: 1 hour and 40 minutes.

ITEM: CPG4 $19.95

Lt. Gen. Longstreet: Culprit or Scapegoat?

After the Civil War, some former Confederate officers insisted that Longstreet had lost the battle of Gettysburg. Many of these detractors had the ear of the public by virtue of having started political careers in Washington. General Lee, a potential ally, was gone. National Park Service Ranger Karlton Smith explains how the actions of other officers at Gettysburg may have affected Longstreet's performance.

DVD. Viewing time: 1 hour and 7 minutes.

ITEM: CPG5 $19.95

Longstreet's Flank Attack

General Longstreet authorized an after-dark scouting party to search for ways "by which we might strike the enemy's left." He began to implement a tactical turning maneuver early on the last day of the battle before General Lee cancelled it. National Park Service Ranger Troy Harman poses the question – what if Lee had followed through with Longstreet's plan?

DVD. Viewing time: 1 hour and 20 minutes.

ITEM: CPG6 $19.95

Confederate Cannonade Examined

The first act of a grand tragedy for the South started with the opening shot of a massive Confederate artillery bombardment on the afternoon of the third day of the battle. National Park Service Ranger Bert Barnett describes the events that started an irretrievable slide towards defeat for General Lee's army.

DVD. Viewing time: 46 minutes.

ITEM: CPG7 $19.95

Big Round Top

Looming 120 feet higher than its more famous little brother, the hill known as Big Round Top is rarely visited today. With numerous historic photos in hand, licensed Battlefield Guides Garry Adelman and Timothy Smith explore the trails, unique rock formations and monuments that distinguish this area.

DVD. Viewing time: 1 hour and 44 minutes.

ITEM: CPG8 $19.95

The Battle of Waterloo Limited Edition Prints

Series 1 - Struggle for Hougoumont

This first series is a highly collectible and rare, first pair of an annual series on Waterloo, depicting the brick garden wall at the farm of Hougoumont. This farm was the site of the struggle between the British and the French at the Battle of Waterloo in 1815.

This limited edition, signed set of prints exhibits stunning depth and detail. Chris Collingwood, one of the finest military portrait painters of his generation, captures a unique "double perspective" of the struggle for the Hougoumont farm house, which has now fallen into extreme disrepair. A new series of paintings is planned every year up until the bi-centennial in 2015, featuring previously unseen aspects of the battle. A significant percentage of the proceeds from the sale of the prints will be used to preserve this famous farm house.

Collectors Edition:

- Numbered and Signed by Chris Collingwood
- High quality, acid free paper
- Image size (including border): 33" x 23"
- Limited to 450 copies
