

D-DAY70—Contents

INTRODUCTION

8 The Battle That Still Matters

David T. Zabecki

12 Assault on Fortress Europe

The longest day—and the six long days after

David T. Zabecki

22 The Storm Before the Storm

One man bore the lonely burden of setting it all in motion

Carlo D'Este

32 Topography is Destiny

From the beaches to the bocage, Normandy's terrain shaped the fortunes of battle

David T. Zabecki

38 Leading the Liberation

Before the landings began, U.S. Army Rangers and British commandos were fighting in Normandy

John M. Curatola

PORTFOLIO

46 Lost & Found

Most of Robert Capa's Omaha Beach photos were ruined. He was the lucky one

Caitlin Newman

52 Incident at Brécourt Manor

To clear a path for troops off Utah Beach, a band of airborne brothers improvised under fire

Dick Winters

60 "Things Were About to Get Ugly"

A German infantryman who shot hundreds of Americans on Omaha Beach describes his longest day

Hein Severloh, translated by Robert R. Wolf

70 Rethinking Rommel

How the Germans sabotaged themselves at Normandy

David T. Zabecki

78 In Normandy's Shadow

The battle for the beaches was done, but vicious fighting lay ahead

David T. Zabecki

MUST-READ BOOKS

83 The Essential Library

Robert M. Citino

MUST-SEE MOVIES

85 Focus on D-Day

Gene Santoro

MUST-HAVE NEW MEDIA

89 D for Digital

Keith Altavilla and Joe Stoltz

93 Passing the Torch

History's witnesses inspire a new generation

Bridgett Henwood